Seldom has there been such a hard-working, studious, conscientious and lovable group of students in one class.

Now that the commercial is over, let's get down to the facts.

These young men have been a pleasure to have in class. Their sense of humor and their ability to get along so well with their peers will take them a long way towards success in the future.

Although we are a small and unique group, there is nothing small about our accomplishments. We have proven " Where there is a will there is a way ".

Last but not the least....

Cussing and fighting, smiling and laughing, frowning and crying are memories of the shop that will linger on. Without emotions the world would be a boring place. It takes individuals to have emotions and it takes people to have memories.

To the Class of 1992,

Congratulations. You have successfully completed one of life's true passages - a twelve-year odyssey from childhood to adulthood. The joy of graduation is, however, accompanied by the responsibilities of adulthood.

Now you will face up to those responsibilities. In so doing you will find life to be an evervarying and exciting mixture of success and failure. We, your teachers, have done our best to arm you with the skills and work ethics you will need to succeed in your adult life. It is now up to you to apply your knowledge for the benefit of yourself, your family, and your society. It is your knowledge and beliefs that will form the basis of the society you, we, and your children will live in for the decades to come. Tri-County has provided you with the foundation upon which your adult future can be successfully built.

So my message to you is that you accept your adult responsibilities confidently and enthusiastically. The excitement and joy which accompanies graduation can be experienced throughout your adult life if you remember that learning never ends. It is rather a process to be respected and enjoyed throughout your adult life.

My congratulations and best wishes go with you. Thank you for having been with us at Tri-County.

Sincerely,

John M. Jones

To The Class of 1992,

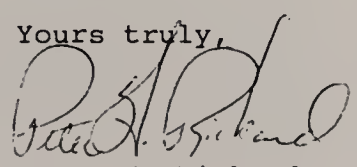
This yearbook attempts to chronicle your senior year of high school; a year which you will look back upon fondly. If you have taken advantage of the education offered in your years at Tri-County, I feel quite confident that you are leaving school prepared to face the challenges in your future.

You should now be competent academically and vocationally. You should possess the ability to reason and think logically. You have been taught to work with others as a team member. Hopefully you have also learned to transfer your skills to new work situations and applications. The future will demand this.

Another lesson which has been taught is that education must be a life long endeavor. Whether you are headed to college right after high school or if you are entering the world of work you will find that there's much more to learn and many venues in which to accomplish this. Many opportunities exist for you to further your education and you should now have the skills to take advantage of these situations.

Congratulations on your achievements to this point and best wishes on your future endeavors. I know that we've been a part of your education to this point and hope that you'll keep us informed about your future accomplishments.

Yours truly,



Peter H. Rickard
Principal

fashion parade

"Every Thing I Do, I Do It For You."

Chaperons and prom-attendees agreed the Junior / Senior Prom held Friday, May 8, 1992 at The Sheraton- Milford, was a special good time that will long be remembered. Two hundred students danced the night away. The theme for the prom was " Every Thing I Do, I Do It For You," the message made popular by the Brian Adams song from Robinhood. Candles in engraved long-stemmed wine glasses were the prom favors. The students and their dates, in a rainbow of prom finery, provided the glamour for the evening.

The Senior Class Royalty choices were: Lisa Lyons, queen; Paul Waite king; and their court, Fred Rogers, Trinda Yurek, Mark Bardol and Jen Evans. Alyssa Chamberlain was chosen Junior Class Prom Queen, and Josh Wells was voted king.

" And I believe, it has been that freedom of space to be our different selves, that acceptance of each other as individuals, that truly identifies the class of 1992."

Four years ago, if any one had told me that it was possible to get through high school with out being attached to a certain clique, I would never have believed you. After all, like most of you, I had just come from junior high where cliques were a way of life. If you weren't a jock, a nerd, a druggie, or a trouble maker, you had no identity. Starting this whole process over again in a new school where we had to make so many other major adjustments, seemed like an overwhelming challenge.

As the first few months of freshman year passed, and I became more familiar wit Tri-County, I was ready to fit in - somewhere. But, believe it or not, I just didn't see any specific groups that required " fitting in". Much to my pleasant surprise, I discovered that at Tri-County, I didn't need to fit in somewhere. I felt accepted everywhere, because everywhere I went, especially among you my classmates, I found not cliques but individuals, with different backgrounds and different interests, with different goals and different fears, and it was O.K. to be with any of you, anywhere. And I believe, it has been that freedom of space to be our different selves, that acceptance of each other as individuals, that truly identifies the class of 1992.

This is not to say that each of us has been totally independent. We have had many important decisions to make: like what shop to take, whether or not to get involved in activities or sports, and we needed the help of parents, teachers and counselors, as well as the influence of new friends - to encourage us to make choices that were right for us as individuals, rather than as potential members of any " in group ". For this help and guidance we are grateful.

Now as we prepare to leave, we hardly remember who came when, or from where. We have managed, because of our differences and not in spite of them, to form unique friendships that will last far beyond this day, and we have created many wonderful memories not only of the struggles and the adjusting, but of the fun times we have shared.

While we were having fun, we certainly set individual trends. In our styles of dress, our hairdos, and even in our ways of moving, who would ever think that hidden deep within the walls of the Electrical Shop would be four masters of dance ? We have also freely pooled our individual talents to form playoff teams in several sports and to earn VICA and DECA medals. This class boasts builders, artists, leaders and scholars. We can even sadly claim that we are the first graduating class never to have had a snow day.

In the class of '92 there has been space for everyone: the gullible and the shrewd: the disorganized and the methodical: the scholarly, the athletic, the clever and the clownish. To be sure, we have not left out traditions. We have enjoyed and appreciated the proms, the senior dinner dance, the ski trips and who will ever forget the class trip, when even the shy could not hold back.

Our collective and individual experiences here have given us a brief snapshot of the real world of work and study where we will certainly meet many more individuals to appreciate and accept. They have also made us more confident that our particular talents and skills will find other places where they will be welcomed and developed as they have been here at Tri-County.

Even though each of us has formed a unique and separate piece of the puzzle that is the class of '92, we do in many important ways, fit together. And we leave the classes who follow with hopeful message:

Be yourself,
don't worry about acceptance: it's here.
Everyone counts.

Congratulations and good luck

" No matter which arena we enter tomorrow, or next week, or in the fall, we all have one thing in common: Tri-County has given us the confidence to look to our futures with hope."

As we leave Tri-County we are faced with new realities which will influence our lives even more dramatically than our past choices have. Some of us will immediately pursue careers in the trades for which we have been trained here: others will delay this plunge into the real world of work by continuing our education in a college, university, technical school, or the armed services. In all of these arenas, many obstacles to success lie in our paths: the job market continues to decline: tuition rates are escalating at a furious pace: the world complains that American workers are greedy, lazy and unproductive. I believe, however, that we as graduates of a vocational technical school will be in a unique position to make these potential problems work to our advantage.

No matter which arena we enter tomorrow, or next week, or in the fall, we all have one thing in common: Tri-County has given us the confidence to look to our futures with hope. This confidence comes from two different sources. First, our trade skills. We have received the knowledge, spent time in practice, and have acquired competence in our individual shop areas. This means we can present ourselves as skilled workers to employers whose tight budgets will not allow them the luxury of training people from the beginning.

But this advantage brings with it added responsibilities. We cannot point to others to answer the call for quality. As new members of the skilled work force, or as those who would develop new technologies through further study, we commit ourselves as individuals to improving quality in the workplace. If we would prove America's detractors wrong, we cannot argue with words. We must show by our real dedication to excellence, that American workers can and will supply the best products and services to the world market.

But quality as a subject of boasting to the world, quality for its own sake, cannot be our only goal. We must believe that the higher purpose of our personal and collective efforts in the lab, in the factory, and in the marketplace must be an enhanced standard of living for all of humankind and must demonstrate this belief through our actions. The quality of goods and services which we will strive to produce must be designed to meet the needs of people, to improve communications among people and to promote attitudes of acceptance and tolerance of all people.

As graduates of Tri-County, we can confidently approach these tasks as well, because, in addition to our trade skills, we carry with us the experience of having learned in an environment where we have been cared about, tolerated, accepted and appreciated as people, without regard to what shop we chose, what town we came from, or how our last name is spelled.

As we go forth, let us resolve to bring both our skills and our values with us so that we can create for those who follow us, new places of hope in an American way of life where quality starts with one, and where everyone counts.

Congratulations and good luck

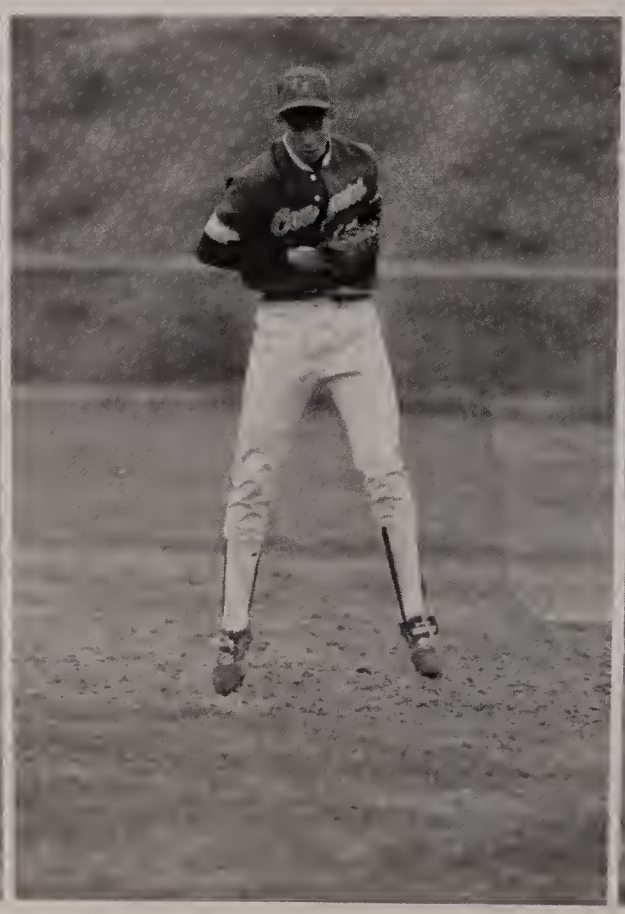
SPORTS ROUNDUP "92

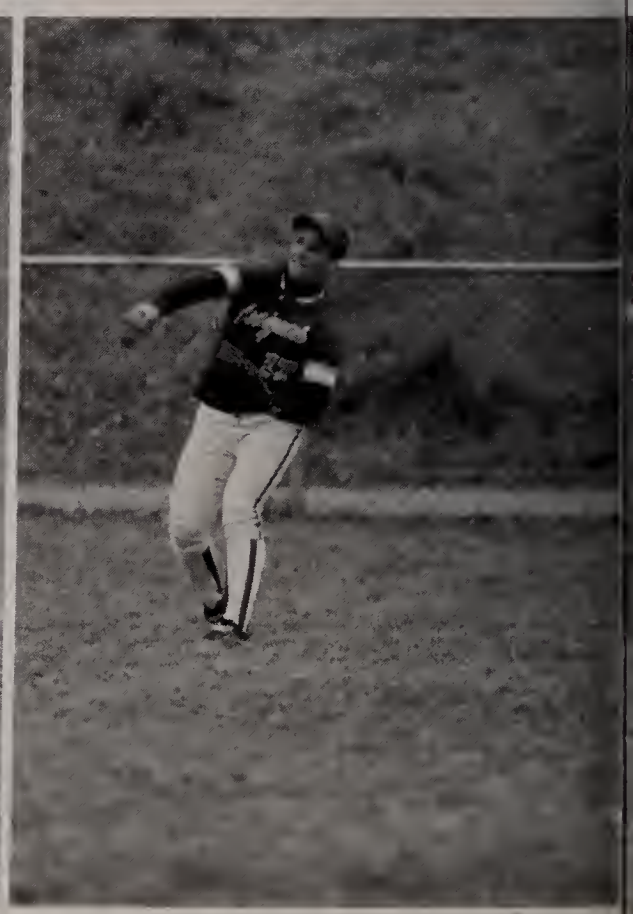
1992 BASEBALL - DREAM SEASON

As the regular school year draws to a close, the 1992 Tri-County baseball team put the finishing touches on a "Dream Season" that left virtually all school records smashed. The Cougars' 18 win-4 loss tilt marked a school record, a record they set in 1991 when the team posted 16 victories. When Tri-County defeated Harwich High School 7-6 in the bottom of the ninth inning in the first round of the state playoffs, it marked the first time any Cougar varsity team won a post-season tournament game. 1992 also found the baseball team qualifying for an unprecedented third straight Massachusetts post-season tournament.

Seniors Jeff DeRosa and Mark Pitts were named to the All-Conference squad for the second consecutive year. DeRosa broke all the school's pitching records, records he set his previous year. Mark Pitts closed out his brilliant T-C athletic career leading the team with a .437 batting average. Pitts also pitched well, winning three games and notching a 1.30 earned run average. Both he and DeRosa hit Tri-County's first-ever post season tournament homers.

Seniors Bill Setterlund, Mark Bardol and Chris May were also named to the All-Conference team, and senior second baseman Brian Homsi along with junior John Allen and sophomore Dave Kinzer were given Honorable Mention awards. The graduating six seniors from this record team brought a respectability and a profile to Tri-County athletics that will be difficult to maintain. It is to their credit that a new standard has been born!



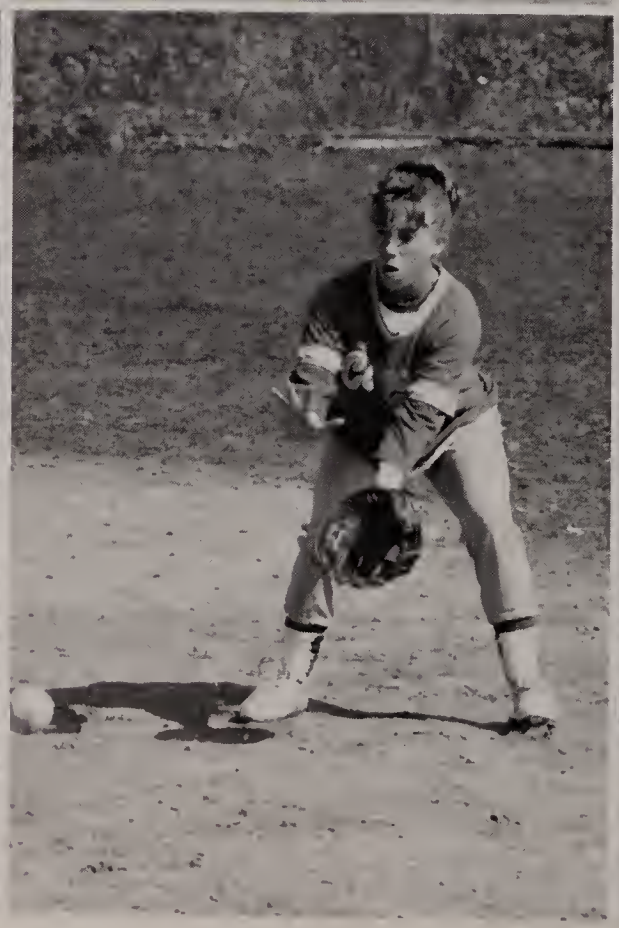


GIRLS SOFTBALL

How do we measure success - by number of wins and losses? In that case we should stop here.
Do we measure success by attitude, character, effort, improvement and respect? Then, let's proceed.

The season started with twenty-five individuals forming both a junior varsity and varsity team. By the end of the season, two unique genuine TEAMS had grown. These teams developed strong character which helped them become very competitive by virtue of their improvement. They gave 100% effort and kept a positive attitude against all odds. Heads were held high on and off the field.

Yes, we had a very SUCCESSFUL season. Thanks for everything, Coaches Pickering and Forbes.



SOCCER

The soccer team made its first post season showing in 11 years, under the direction of Mr. Peter Bugg. The senior dominated team of Matt Allard, Brian Baker, Paul Bourque, Jim Genoa, Brian Homsi, Joe Lavalley, Dave Vachon, Joe Wallace and senior manager Patricia Simon all contributed to a fine year.

SPRING TRACK

With a new coach and a new system of coaching, many changes took place on our track team this year. Coach Berteletti, who had served at King Philip for sixteen years, brought a very young team to a position of competition. The team showed great spirit and drive which resulted in three boys qualifying for the State Championships. Near the end of the season, our team lost to league champion, Blue Hills, by only three points.

Outstanding athletes were Damon Bickford, javelin; Chris Sullivan, 100-meter and relay; Todd LaBagh, 400 and low hurdles; Adrienne Bennett 100 and long jump; Tom Tomassi, 200 and relay team; and Ed Revell, mile.

Next year promises to be an exciting one with the return of this team.

CHEERLEADING

After a late spring competition and a successful summer camp, the cheerleading squad had one of its finest seasons. Co-Captains Janice Blais and Allysa Chamberlain kept the squad in tune with many new dances and gymnastic routines. Seniors Trinda Yurek and Justine Ficco added fun and smiles to the team.
